Journey to Japan RAMBLINGS IN JAPAN

by T. Geo. Wood.

We shall tell the story of a beach trip to Katakai, a fishing village about 45 miles from Tokyo—facing the Pacific Ocean across the Chiba peninsula.

At 8:30 on Saturday, our friends, the Forresters, came to Pershing Heights. They are a Cumberland Presbyterian missionary family, from Tennessee, busy establishing a mission centre near Yokohama, learning the Japanese language and expect to live here for many years, supported by their church.

We discussed their system, compared with the L.D.S. program of sending young people out to Japan for a period of only three years. Rev. Forrester has been studying the language already for about that time and claims only to have a beginners knowledge. Yet our boys and girls are able to converse with the people in a few months. This is because of intense study and constant mingling with the people themselves. Our missionaries are released in three years.

President Hilton Robertson of our L.D.S. mission has about 90 Elders and sisters working all over Japan, with about 25 branches. He also presides over the servicemen's groups, about 45, scattered in Japan, Korea, Okinawa, and the Philippines. He has all the Far East under the jurisdiction of himself and Sister Robertson with, theoretically over 600,000-000 people to convert. Some responsibility. He agrees that his missionaries must leave at the time when they can be most useful.

Well now, after this digression, shall we start on our trip? There were five Forresters, Tom, a big six-footer, Fran, his wife, slim and auburn haired; Garry, Jimmy and little Kay, about 3 years. Daddy and Mommy Wood you know, and the Slovers, Bob, Rosemarie, Robby and Cindy, now 2 1/4 years who runs everywhere and because of her blond tresses is an object of deep admiration by all the Japanese.

The usual business of packing the picnic, water bottles, balls, books, swim suits and cameras (alas, I forgot my camera) took place, but finally off we went. I visited with the boys in the Forrester station wagon, leaving the ladies together in the Buick.

We took off on T Avenue which runs east for about 15 miles across the head of Tokyo Bay, an industrial street full of factories, engine works and boiler factories. Most of our road was paved, but like all Japanese roads, in poor repair, large holes and ruts and many sections being rebuilt.

They are forever working over their roads, with much hand labor, women breaking rocks, laying in blocks, hauling sand and fine gravel, before the final surfacing is done by road machinery.

Finally we got into the flat fields where farming was going on at full blast.

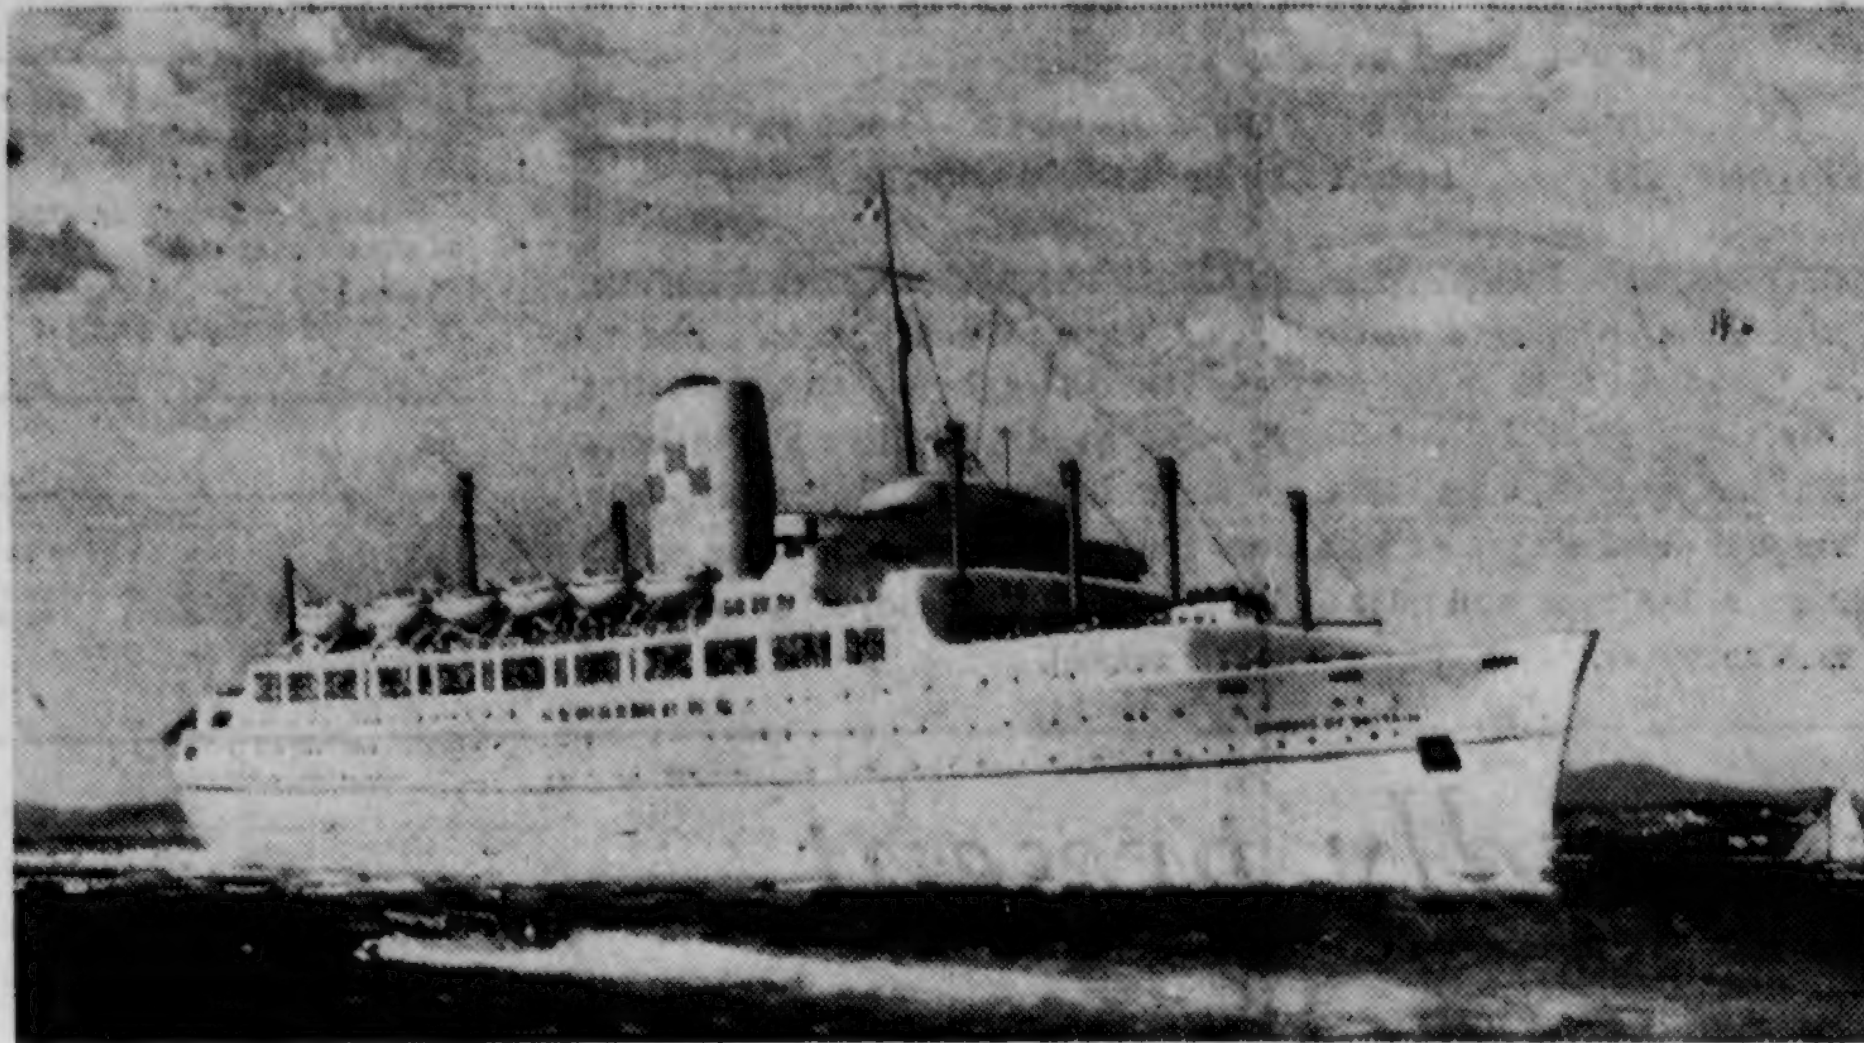

All the early vegetables are now on the market and the people seem to like especially the very young, immature plants and leaves. We have seen baby cucumbers, packed in small boxes with the flowers still on the end. Tiny acorns and chestnuts, egg plants and peppers only about an inch long, even soy bean plants sold with roots and leaves and the baby beans on the stalks, all are in the stalls, with snowpeas, a flat pod eaten whole.

Our route after leaving Tokyo took off along the bay shore and through the towns, which are almost continuous in sight of the water. We passed through Ichikawa, Funibashi and Makuhari. The tide was out and dozens of busses were parked while the picnic parties, most of them school girls in middles, were wading in the mud flats, harvesting clams, mussels and other sea foods.

All the flats are staked out with fluttering small flags, and represent the holdings of the seaweed gatherers. This was the principle occupation of the inhabitants. At low tide they were raking seaweed into wind-

Air Cadet Activities

Monday, May 30th, will be an inspection of cadets by F/Sgt. DeGuerre who will brief us on the annual inspection, which will be held on June 7th. All cadets are requested to be on parade on these two days. Remember to polish your buttons and boots. Boots should be black. Regulation shirts should be worn with tie. Shirts are now available from the supply officer.

It is very important to have as many cadets as possible out for the annual parade as the grant of money from the government depends on the number of cadets present at this roll call.

All Air Cadets are to meet at the Junior High School at 7:00 a.m. for transportation to the Air Cadet Rally at RCAF Station, Clareholm, Sunday.

Touring The Town With Amy

— Amy Campbell

You'll be happy, shoppers, to see all the bargains we have at hand this week.

In the Mercantile we find a new revolutionary method of killing flies. With amazing effectiveness the Green Cross Fly Chamer lures flies and kills flies by the dozens. All you have to do is pour the solution into the plastic dispenser, raise the pylon and Fly Chamer does the rest. Your home will be free of these pests this summer and there'll be no irritating mist or spray if you use it.

The World's most modern dish drainer is the Rubbermaid in Stones. The new detachable silverware holder and the new glass-drying holders are very special features you'll be glad of. Thirty minutes a day means a lot to a housewife.

Your electric toaster will be a lot better off if you protect it with a Tower plastic cover. This cover is made of Korosed vinyl resin and is sanitary, durable and easily cleaned. You'll see it in the Broadway.

Don't risk moth damage. Before it's too late protect your clothes against moths with Dichloride moth crystals. Visit the Raymond Pharmacy and purchase some now.

Would you like to set your dinner table with exquisite English china, sprinkled with yellow buttercups? In the Merc you will see a 66-piece set of these for $37.50.

Men! Did you notice the attractive Slater Shoes in Burns Shoe Store window? Of new low cut style, new shades and fine finished leather, these shoes are the shoes for you.

High School Renort

"Cherry Pink and Apple Blossom White," the popular hit tune everybody loves, was the theme of the Junior Prom, held May 20 in the High School Gym. At 9:00 the Raymond Orchestra filled the gym with beautiful waltz music and couples began to dance beneath the ceiling which was interwoven with pink and white streamers. The girls filled out the pretty programs which were cut in the shape of a cherry with a silver spangled apple blossom on the front. Five high school girls were running for Queen that night and later in the evening the draw was made. Off the stage among the bushes and white picket fences which were bedecked with blossoms stepped Rieko Takahashi, Queen of the Junior Prom. During the Queen's Waltz, Joyce Stevenson and LaRita West sang the lovely theme song. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing and turned out to be a big success.

Jack Evans Chosen Liberal Nominee In Warner Tuesday

John L. Evans of Raymond, prominent farmer and rancher, was chosen as the Liberal standard bearer for the Warner constituency at an enthusiastic nomination meeting held in the Elks Hall in Warner Tuesday evening.

Over 80 delegates, believed a record for the Warner constituency, attended the meeting, which also heard addresses from Hugh John Macdonald, Liberal M.L.A. of Calgary and Allen J. Cullen of Lethbridge, prominent in Liberal affairs in that city. Gerald Marshall of New Dayton was chairman of the meeting.

Mr. Evans, a Raymond town councillor, was nominated by B. V. Heninger. His selection was unanimous by the meeting.

Mr. Evans has been very active in social and church affairs in Raymond and district. He also is well known throughout the constituency and particularly in the Wrentham and Milk River districts.

Besides his work on the town council, Mr. Evans also is a past president and charter member of the Raymond Lions club, has served on the town planning commission and is a member of the Raymond Stampede Committee.

Mr. Evans is a member of the L. D.S. Church and has held many positions in various church activities.

Mr. Macdonald, in his address, said he had noted a "new feeling" in the air in Alberta — a "grass roots" interest in the Liberal party in this province.

He dealt with the events leading up to the present election, when J. Harper Prowse, Liberal leader, has suggested that perhaps Social Credit members were sitting illegally thru their dealings with Provincial Treasury branches.

Mr. Manning, he said, called Mr. Prowse's question "an absurdity and a technicality." Yet, said Mr. Macdonald, he called an election, which costs upwards of $400,000 to hold in an effort to clear the government.

All the questions the Liberals and other opposition members asked concerned public money — your money and mine, he said.

We're going to keep on asking questions, and if a Liberal government should be elected we shall continue an even closer investigation to find if any public money has been misused. And if it has we shall attempt to get it back he added.

He said opposition members had raised various questions concerning land deals. Investigation in the public accounts committee, and some personal investigation by the Liberals, revealed this:

The Alberta Block was bought by a middleman in June, 1952 for $175,000. It has twice been offered to the government for less than that figure before the middleman bought it. After his purchase on June 5, the government suddenly became interested and on Aug. 26, 1952, bought it for $225,000.

The government then spent $513,000 renovating and altering the building for the next few years for a total cost to the people of $738,000. The deputy minister of public works said such a building could have been constructed new for only $670,000.

On the Chestermere Lake jail site deal a middleman bought an 800-acre farm for $81,000 in June of last year and in September of the same year resold it to the government for $127,000.

Let's have a little kitchen chatter this week—first about variety meats. This is what the Home Economics Division, Extension Service of the Alberta Department of Agriculture has to say about their new pamphlet, "Variety Meats."

As a source of iron and other blood building essentials, liver can not be excelled. Kidney and heart come a close second. The other variety meats — tongue, tripe, brains and sweetbreads are also of high nutritional value.

All of these organ meats have been highly prized in the diet of Europeans for centuries. We Canadians could use them more in preparation of tasty, nutritious meals at low cost. Pork liver, considered by many as "only fit for the dogs" is the highest of all in food value and, if fresh, very good too. Kidneys, when properly prepared, are delicious. So are the other variety meats.

Your family object to liver? Try them on some of the recipes in the new leaflet "Variety Meats", from the Home Economics Division of the Alberta Department of Agriculture, Extension Service. Flavor and texture of liver are disguised in these tasty recipes. Instructions are also given for cooking plain liver to produce the best results.

In addition to liver recipes, the leaflet tells how to prepare kidneys, heart, brains, sweetbreads, tripe and tongue for cooking. Recipes are given for the use of each.

"Variety Meats — Economical, Nutritious, Delicious" is the title of this leaflet. It may be obtained from your District Home Economist as well as from the above Edmonton office.

A clever little trick used by a neighbor of mine saves her aluminum kitchen pots from staining when boiling eggs. She keeps a tin can, large or small, depending on the size of the family, just for that purpose. An ugly duckling amongst your shining pots, but a true worker for you.

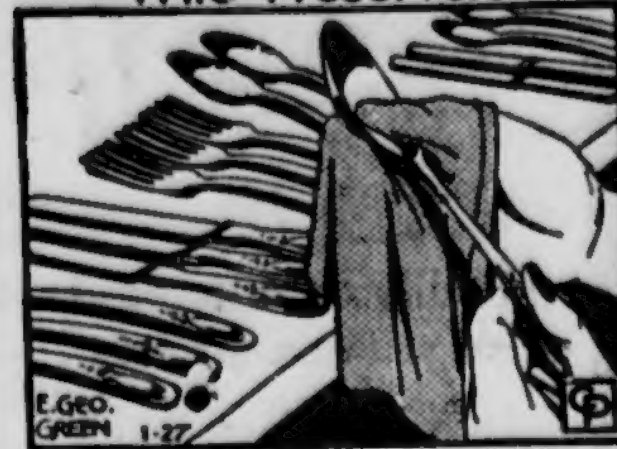

Should your aluminum pans have already a dark film, add 2 tablespoon cream of tartar to a quart of water and boil ten minutes in the pot. Do this and wash in soapy water after each use too. Then pans will stay shiny.

rows, loading it into sampans, and drying it above the water level. These piles of seaweed ran for miles along the roadside and some were even spread on the road pavement to dry.

When we returned the tide was in, the clam gatherers had vanished and only the bobbing sampan boats were filled with fishermen, while the green seaweed was being loaded into three-wheeled trucks for Tokyo consumption. Seaweed, in colors from green to brown to black, is sold everywhere. Shredded, powdered and in strips, it is a major food.

Leaving the bay we started to cross the Chiba peninsula, across beautiful farm lands and rice fields where they will soon transplant, from their green strips, the young plants now protected by strings of flat tin, glittering in the sun as scarecrows.

The rice plots are all bordered by walls of mud about two feet high so they can be flooded. The actual work of building these borders was going on everywhere. The clay is spaded up and flattened with mattocks, so it looks like adobe wall.

Again we passed through the towns of Chiba and Towana. Here we stopped in the narrow main street and bought native pottery.

Finally to Katakai, one of the noted fishing villages facing on the Pacific Ocean. It has a gently sloping, sandy beach running for miles.

Each section has its own fishing junks, which are drawn up on the sand in pairs, and have gasoline engine power.

This drawing up and down into the sea is a remarkable performance. The ships are manned by a crew of five or six men. As we watched, at least one or more of them were completely nude and in and out of the water continuously.

The ships were launched by pushing at the stern poles and hauling on long cables. A crew of about 40 girls and women did the work, as directed by men foremen who had the greased platforms placed at intervals on the sands until the front of the boat floated. Then the launching crew waded into the water, breast high. Some wore slicker blouses, some were bare from the waist up. Many carried babies on their backs. Most hard and strenuous work, rope pulling.

This was reversed as the ship came in loaded with the catch. This day most of the fish were like very large sardines. There were tons of them and as soon as the ship was landed it was met by dozens of ox-carts carrying flat fish boxes.

Women crawled into the hold of fish and loaded bamboo baskets. Working in pairs they lifted these over the ship side. More pairs of women took the baskets of glittering fish, carried and dumped them into the tray boxes and the oxen pulled the loaded carts back to the village. In about 30 minutes unloading was completed and another boat launched.

Many of these fish were spread out on the sands to dry, and when dried were raked into windrows and loaded — sand, flies and all — into sacks. What purification went on after that we could not see, but the smell of the drying fish and the dead flies was sufficient to cure one's appetite for a long time for dried fish.

We took a swim in the ocean surf for a while, but found the water full of biting bugs like small shrimps which kept us brushing them off like ticks.

All in all it was a great picnic day, but we were tame ducks. Our cars and food, and our activities, kept a small crowd of Japanese children entertained. Barring the usual sand trimmings with the eatables food never tasted so good. We even brought back a small bucket of the fish, and while the native women took off the heads, pulled out the backbones and ate them raw, we cleaned, boned and fried them in the conventional manner for supper at home, but only Dad Wood and Robbie were interested. Too much beach and too many fish for the rest of the family.

THINKING
ABOUT
PROFITS ?

The people who conduct
public opinion polls

asked a large number of Canadians this question:

"How big a profit do you think the average Canadian company makes?" Most people thought it was nearly 28% on the income dollar.

Then these people were asked what profit they thought a company ought to make. Most of them thought it was about half as big as that, or around 16%.

Actually, Imperial's profit last year was less than one-third of what people thought we made, or a little more than 8%.

Of this, just over 4% was distributed to Imperial's shareholders.

The rest went back into the business, to help replace worn-out
equipment and meet future needs.

000. The land at Chestermere was evaluated at about $66,000.

When the people there protested the jail site and the price, the government then bought a 2,500-acre farm at Spy Hill for $175,000. This land is evaluated at a top price of $40 per acre, or about $100,000 would have been a good price.

On April 27, 1949, the government bought provincial building No. 2 in Edmonton for $75,000 and spent $33,000 plus for renovations, for a total of $108,000. It was resold to a Mr. Hobeck, president of Canada West Insurance Co. for $64,000. On the same day he bought it, a lease agreement renting it back to the government for nearly $27,000 was signed. It was then sold by Mr. Hobeck to John Landeryou, Roy Lee and William McNab by Prudential Investments Ltd., a holding company. They received the rent from the government, and as a result, Mr. Landeryou and Mr. Lee disqualified themselves to sit in the legislature.

After deducting upkeep and utilities, the rent amounted to $18,000 net — a return of some 28% on their investment.

The courts, said Mr. Macdonald, should settle legal matters. We, the people, cannot decide an issue that is a legal matter.

He concluded by asking, Does the law in our land exclude the Social Credit members?

The issue in this election is not gutter politics or character assassinations, but rather, do we want our government to answer to the people for how their money is spent or are they going to get a blank cheque and do as they please, he concluded.
